Createspace, United States, 2015. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 229 x 152 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .While World War II raged elsewhere, a three-year old boy was awakening to the world in the Ohio farmhouse where he lived with his parents and two brothers. Most of the stories of that awakening time are based on the author s detailed memories, including Scaring the Brown House Bear and Stolen Fudge. Other stories are fictionalized accounts of events the author knows only through his parents accounts. Such stories are Pearl Harbor Day and Tragedy Roars By. The stories may be especially appealing to older adults who experienced the early 1940 s. Parents, grandparents, and teachers may enjoy reading the stories to children. The book includes sample stories of two forthcoming books by the same author. A collection of stories about Ohio farm life in the 1940s, Leatherport Tales, will include The Riding Pig. A collection about church life in the same period, The Clock of the Covenant, will include Grandpa Webert s Pants. All of the stories are short, and most will appeal to a wide range of readers.
