LECTURE X BIOLOGICAL EVOLUTION The Lamarckian, Darwinian, and ultra-Darwinian theories generally compared. Natural selection by itself non-teleological. Attempts to assimilate the biological with the physical. Two difficulties in the way. These lead to the question: Is there not a teleological factor operative throughout biological evolution? Teleological and non-teleological factors distinguished. Darwin recognised both. Only so far as both are present has struggle for existence any meaning. The question raised equivalent to inquiring how far mind is concomitant with life. Naturalism confident that life is the wider conception, and appeals to the facts of plant-life. Continuity seems to help it, but really works both ways. The case argued. The levelling-up method the simpler. Objections to this considered: (1) Reflexes; (2) The character of plants again. Recent views on this point. Restatement of the position reached. Antagonism of organism and environment: the latter, then, not the source of life. Vital force unworkable. Turning to the facts of mind we have: (1) Self-conservation; (2) Subjective selection. The meaning and significance of these. Their distinctness from, and relation to, natural selection. In passing, as we do in this lecture, to the narrower subject of biological evolution, we find no serious attempt made to account for the origin of life or to reduce the facts of life to those of a mechanism. The problem here is merely to explain the diversity of living forms, and that not by the help of mechanical, but of biological, conceptions. The origin...
