Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Europe in the Melting Pot: The Historical Background of the Great War If there are intelligent inhabitants on any planet other than this on which we roll through space, we may imagine them looking down at the earth just now and chuckling as they remark: Well, they are at it again on the earth. Tribes, races, and nations are again in the melting pot. For, though war seems a serious and terrible thing to us who are in it or close to it, to disinterested observers at a great distance, if there are any, who have been watching war follow war on this globe for generation after generation, the whole thing may seem to indicate the pettiness rather than the greatness of humanity. For the old differences are being settled in the old way. Even some of the scenes and some of the actors in this drama have familiar names: Charleroi, Waterloo, Louvain; von der Goltz, and Pau. One is struck with the futility of the whole thing. Must war succeed war with no apparent permanent result save a preparation of conditions out of which the next war may spring? The remark of Sir Edward Hamley, the English historian, concerning the results of the Crimean War, may seem in its despairing cynicism to be applicable to all wars. Thus, said the historian, had the great war been rounded off into an episode having no further connection with the future. Is the great war of today, in which hundreds of thousands of lives are being lost, and the happiness of hundreds of thousands of families destroyed - is this a mere episode in the history of...
